

Abstract

The invention relates to a process for the production of L-amino acids by fermentation using coryneform bacteria in which the mqo gene is enhanced.